« « ANDOVER ON THE EVE OF WAR » »

December 4, 1941. Following years of dispute, years of ill feeling, the United States was on the brink of war with Japan. Relations with the Nazi regime, on the other face of the world, were equally strained. The nation was closer to actual combat than at any time since the end of hostilities on November 11, 1918, just 23 years before.

The town of Andover, in nearly three hundred years, had invariably been ready to participate in the nation's war. In 1774, two years before the outbreak of the Revolutionary war, it had pledged its support to the Provincial Congress against Great Britain. In 1798, it had rallied to the support of President John Adams when a break with France seemed inevitable. In 1812, in the Mexican war, in the Civil war, it had always been more than ready to do its share towards the national defense. At a historic town meeting in March, 1917, a month before the country's declaration of war on Germany, it unanimously approved President Wilson's stand in breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany. On the eve of this, the greatest conflict in world history, in which, it appeared, Andover was shortly to play a prominent part, the town had already been of great service to the country, had opened the possibilities of doing much more.

KILLED IN ACTION

Two Andover men had already been killed in service, peace time service, naturally, but in activities directly attributable to the national defense effort. Robert Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of Hidden Field, was killed at Maxwell Field in Montgomery, Alabama, when his parachute failed to open after motor trouble had forced him to bail out.

On September 17, David Beattie Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brown of Essex street, died instantly when struck by the propeller of an airplane he was servicing at a navy field at Corpus Christie, Texas.

Civilian defense had been placed in competent hands. Howell F. Shepard was the first chairman of the local committee of public safety; shortly, the pressure of his other duties forced him to turn over his duties to Kenneth L. Sherman. Mr. Sherman served through the summer months until September 30, when he resigned to devote more time to his activities as school superintendent. Atty. Alan T. Polgreen is the present chairman.

THE DEFENSE SCHOOLS

Meanwhile, however, an air-raid precautions school had opened and closed at Phillips Academy, its destinies guided by Leonard James of the faculty. Nine or ten local people were included in the 116 who graduated in the five week course.

Later, Fire Lieut. Albert Cole became Andover's chief air raid warden, assisted by deputies Carl Stevens of the police department and Mrs. Charles D. Thompson, headmistress of the Women's Defense school.

The Thompsons, by the way, had given as much to patriotism as any other family in town. Robert Thompson, Andover's first sacrifice to the gods of war, was the son of Lieut. Thompson of the Women's Defense school.

As for the school—it opened with a mass meeting which nearly filled spacious George Washington Hall, got rolling two weeks afterwards, October 6, with day sessions for about 32 students. Evening sessions, too, were offered by the four instructors, to begin November 10. Courses offered were divided into Canteen, Warden, Motor Corps.

THE STATE GUARD

Andover was, meanwhile, represented in two companies of the Massachusetts State Guard, 24th infantry. In Company D, based in the Lawrence armory, there were about 20 Andover men. Captain Clyde A. White and Lieut. Raymond G. Mowat were both Andover men; the three corporals, Irving J. Whitcomb, George A. Porter, and Walworth Johnson were residents of this town. Completely equipped and nattily uniformed, the Company had made one overnight encampment, had had extensive practice in the use of weapons at Camp Curtis Guild in Wakefield, and some of them had taken special courses in first aid and emergency squad work.

Andover men were equally prominent in Company L of the state guard. Its chief exploit had been participation in the search for Pamela Hollingsworth, lost for several days in a state reservation near Albany, N. H., receiving high praise for their work from Major Donald McIntyre, commanding officer. Nine Andover men were enlisted in the third battalion, of which Company L is a part, among them Captain Kenneth L. Sherman, Lieut. William R. Hill, Sergeant Donald Dunn, Corporals Rudolph Johnson, Benjamin Dimlich, and Patrick Pappalardo. Sergt. Dunn, this week, left the State Guard in consequence of his appointment as a senior lieutenant in the navy.

DRAFT BOARD

Harder to tabulate were the numbers and identities of the men in the army, navy, marine corps, coast guard. Local draft board No. 4, including Andover in its jurisdiction, had, this week, registered 2303 men, classified 1900. Of these, 271 had been examined by the board physicians, and 94 actually inducted into the army. Only 15 men were declared physically unfit when examined at the Boston induction center, speaking well both for the thorough work of the draft doctors and the general health of the local citizenry. Twenty men were serving with Board 3 in various capacities, all of them serving without compensation of any kind except the office staff. The advisory board put in a minimum of eight hours a week, and the classifying board often worked until the small hours of the morning.

RELIEF CAMPAIGNS

That, then, takes care of the personnel active in defense. How have the people behind the people behind the guns supported the movement? The answer is an inspiring one; no campaign to raise funds for any aspect of war or relief work has as yet failed in Andover during the course of the present conflict.

Last May 15, for instance, the sum of $4214.50 was sent to aid in the purchase of a Spitfire airplane. Officials of the English town had collected 4060 pounds towards the fund; the one on this side of the water offered to chip in with the remainder. Andover easily went over the top.

Collections taken in the Shaw-shen mill, through the offices of the local British War Relief society, financed the purchase of a rolling kitchen, or mobile canteen truck, for service in Great Britain, and has been in service there since the beginning of August.

A striking instance of how far this town will go to support something in which it believes was evidenced in a day-long drive for funds for another rolling kitchen, put on by members of the Andover Guild. 135 children planned to solicit funds on a Saturday in March. When that day dawned, however, the worst snowstorm of the year was in progress. Daunted not a bit by the weather, the children spent the whole day wading through deep snow, making a thorough house to house canvass. It had been arranged to have the whistle at the Tye Rubber Company blow every time an additional hundred dollars had been raised; townspeople, confined to their homes, heard the whistle blow sixteen times. $1500 had been the established goal; $1611 was raised. It wasn't the biggest collection ever taken in town, but it was probably the most dramatic.

The U. S. O. drive in Andover took place under the auspices of the Greater Lawrence division, with William A. Doherty as local chairman and Frank Petty as treasurer. $410.17 was raised and turned over to the Lawrence headquarters.

LEGION WATCHERS

All over the country, of course, members of the American Legion were serving as volunteer aircraft spotters. Here in Andover, the Legion set up and completely equipped an observation post at the Jenkins farm on Ballardvale road, and was ready to swing into action on a few minutes' notice. The actual leeway given them was 72 hours.

Under plans drawn up by the Massachusetts Committee of Public Safety, report, control and observation posts were to be set up in certain specific localities. Andover's post was to be what is called a report center, which would receive the news of approaching bombers, order the proper signals, and direct emergency crews in the event that an actual bombing raid damaged vital public utilities. Chief Air Raid Warden Albert Cole had a large crew of men ready to serve as reporters and wardens. The center itself has not as yet been fitted out, however, since the town has found no money available to appropriate for the purpose.

THE RED CROSS

The Red Cross, as always, was in the forefront of defense and relief activities. The central committee in Washington had set up a national defense council to supplement the one in charge of disaster relief; the local chapter worked in accordance with this plan. Chairmen were appointed and workers assigned to committees on housing, motor corps, food, rehabilitation, finance, medical supplies.

$6,000,000 had been spent by the national headquarters in assistance of various kinds given to the armed forces all over the country. Andover had done its bit in the effort. 7466 garments for British relief had been made, the cost amounting to $2,467.40, while one hundred shelter kits were sent to the women of England at a cost, to the local chapter, of $100.

The work of the Junior Red Cross, as organized in the local public schools, will be discussed with them.

THE LOCAL MILLS

Andover's three large mills, meanwhile, were experiencing one of the busiest periods in their history, turning out large quantities of material directly useful to the armed forces of the nation, or, as in the case of the Shawsheen mill, performing operations that left other mills free to devote their main efforts to defense work.

The Tyer Rubber Company kept some 800 workers busy on defense work, most of them on two shifts, while some departments kept their machines in operation 24 hours a day. Manufactured at Tyer were overshoes and boots for the army and navy, several kinds of hospital supplies for the medical corps, rubber tubing for the air corps. Indirectly, they were aiding the defense effort by furnishing parts for airplane, truck, and submarine manufacturers. Their work on selling defense bonds is discussed in another part of this issue.

The Shawsheen mill had 2600 men working on three shifts. Most of the American Woolen Company's large defense orders were being filled by other mills of the large chain, while Shawsheen concentrated on the ordinary civilian requirements. Most of their actual defense service consisted in making worsted tops for other mills, a top being one stage in the manufacture of cloth. Raw wool in large quantities was being made into tops, then shipped to other mills for manufacture into yarn, weaving, and other processes towards completion of the finished cloth. The weaving and mending on certain contracts had also been done there.

More directly, Shawsheen had filled some orders for cloth for army and navy uniforms, were currently engaged on a contract for government khaki.

Marland's mill was currently producing 50,000 yards of khaki for the Quartermaster Corps in Washington, had already been working on the order a month, expected to be busy on it for several months to come.

THE LOCAL SCHOOLS

The public schools conducted their defense activities chiefly through the medium of the Junior Red Cross. All such activities were co-ordinated under a central committee of adults, organized during the third week of September, and were directly supervised by Anton Kishon of the Punchard faculty and Miss Nancy Hird of the Junior high school.

Both Red Cross organizations, functioning separately, had their own student officers, Miss Rebecca Stevens of the high school, Miss Jean Mulvey of the Junior high. In the high school, Donald D. Dunn, physical education supervisor, was giving a course in first aid, one period a week, to 40 students. A knitting group, supervised by Miss Marion Macdonald, had completed 12 sweaters, expected to finish twice that number by Christmas. Twenty-four workers were knitting on sweaters and scarfs, and from six to twelve girls helped in the Red Cross rooms on various occasions.

The Shawsheen school was, like the other schools, actively participating in the drive for the collection of waste paper, and had donated $8.84 to the Red Cross. The Stowe school, not organized under the two central committees, had turned over $14.12 to the Junior Red Cross, collected $58.85 in the waste paper campaign. Nearly all the students, of all the schools, had made donations towards the construction of the battleship Massachusetts.

Junior High School students were knitting sweaters for the Red Cross; their totals were, completed, 8; in process, 104; expected to complete, at least 150.

This summary includes, of course, only those Junior Red Cross activities directly pertinent to defense; other parts of their program included the preparation of Christmas and Thanksgiving baskets, and the sale of Christmas seals for tuberculosis relief.

Abbot Academy, which happens to be first alphabetically in the list of the town's schools, also made a bid to be first in defense preparation. By October 30, junior defense courses had been begun under the auspices of a defense committee headed by Miss McKee of the faculty, and including as members the Misses Carpenter, Coolidge, Smith and Mrs. Poland. The instruction was in capable hands, as Misses McKee, Carpenter, and Tingley had attended the sessions of the Massachusetts Women's Civilian Defense School in Boston during the summer, and Miss Carpenter had taken, in addition, the first aid course offered by the metropolitan Red Cross.

Groups were organized at Abbot to study home nursing, motor mechanics, first aid, canteen service, and "The World Today," a discussion group on current events. Knitting for the Red Cross and the British War Relief, which had been carried on all through the previous year, was resumed in the current one.

Phillips Academy had done a great deal towards the defense effort. A brief training of fire wardens had been given selected students by Leonard James, faculty member and former director of the A. R. P. school. Representatives from each dormitory, later to be appointed wardens and assistant wardens for the different houses, were trained to assist the housemasters, receiving instruction on the proper handling of small fire-fighting apparatus, the nature of the progress of flames and the proper handling of doors and windows in the course of a severe fire. First aid and other matters of pertinence were also taught the dormitory wardens.

Starting this week was an intensive twelve week course in first aid, given by George Sanborn, Scott Paradise, G. Grenville Benedict, Frederick S. Allis and Dr. Reginald Westgate of the Phillips faculty. It was planned to have the group meet in the Borden gymnasium twice a week for an hour of lecture and practice.

The Phillips Rifle club, two years old, was in the midst of a busy season, and regular shooting sessions were held in the gymnasium's baseball cage, under the direction of Montville E. Peck, physical director of the school. The rifles themselves, by the way, had been donated by no less a personage than Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, chairman of the school's board of trustees.

DEFENSE BONDS

Meanwhile, defense bonds were being sold through three local sources, the two Andover banks and the local postoffice, though there were a good many stores supplied with the savings stamps. The Andover Savings Bank who began the public sale in May, had, to date, sold $20,100 worth of series E bonds, with a maturity value of $26,800. The National Bank had sold all three types of bonds; they had, this week, received $166,628 from the bond sale, the maturity value in 10 years being $179,325. Of the bonds sold $34,968 had been in series E, $2,960 in series F, $128,700 worth of series G.

The local post office, since May, had sold approximately $44,000 worth of series E bonds; exact figures could not be released. Defense stamps had been sold in steadily increasing numbers; for instance, $299.75 worth had been sold in April, while $753.25 was received in November. As for the bonds, the most notable increase was in the $25 denomination; in April, about 12 were sold, while the present monthly total is closer to 50. A fair average sale persisted in bonds of other sizes, of course, all through that period, about 5 a month being sold in the denominations of $500 and up.

Sales from the three agencies, from bonds alone, gave the astonishing total of $230,728, which means, as near as we can figure it, $20.98 for every resident listed here in the 1940 census. That's a darned good record, one that the whole town has reason to shout about.

THE SUMMARY

There you have an attempt to tabulate and evaluate every contribution made by Andover in the defense effort up to what might prove the historic date of December 4, 1941. It is not a complete summary by any means, though an effort has been made to give at least a few lines to every activity pertinent to the subject. At least enough had been recorded to show that, whatever was the sentiment of its population towards a war that was almost certainly at hand, whatever part Andover was to take when the troops began to march and the guns to fire, it had reason enough to be proud of the work it had done when American war was still a nebulous futurity, and American peace a shining beacon in a world of darkness.

Academy Adult Evening Classes Are Still Increasing In Popularity

Monday Deadline For Special Registrations;
Some Courses Already Filled

They're coming from down in Stoneham and Melrose; they're coming from up in Derry and Plaistow. They're going to swim, they're going to dance, they're going to cook, they're going to do woodworking, they're going to give talks and listen to talks.

They're seeking either more larnin' or a little gainful relaxation. But whatever they're doing, or from wherever they come, they're all heading for Phillips Academy's buildings, where shortly the eighth annual Andover Evening Study Groups for Adults will begin.

It seemed a pretty good idea back in 1935 when the courses were first started. Those in charge were well pleased with the enrollment of 252 different persons. That was good for a start, and they expected that it might even increase a bit for one or two years, then if interest dwindled as it does in most things, there'd probably be a drop. But as American History writers used to say of the 55 framers of the Constitution, before 1932: "They builded better than they knew." The academy expected a dropping off in registration, but it just didn't drop. Last year there were 790 persons registered, with 1168 course registrations!

This year it looks as if there will be even more, for the registration to date is ahead of the same time last year. Incidentally, if you want to save a little money, it would be well to get in your registration before that day, one dollar may be deducted from the total fee.

Some Closed Already

Apparently the most popular courses in these days when thinking is bad because there are so many distressing things to think about are those courses where not too much thinking is required. Already closed to registration because the limit of enrollment has been reached, are Woodworking A and B, Swimming I and II, and Planning and Cooking of Meals. But the other courses, in which are discussed what's going on in this world of ours, what our world was and what it might be—they, too, are attracting attention, as are the courses in the arts, in literature, and in music.

The Current Affairs course, given by Dirk van der Stucken every year since the program opened, is always much in demand. It started out with a registration of 71; last year it totalled 218. This year there's another course on "After the War," in which will be discussed problems of the peace settlement and post-war reconstruction. Dealing with probably the most important subject in the world today, this course should draw a heavy registration. Wilbur Bender and Leonard James will conduct it. The booklets published by the academy on the courses, and available at the Academy or the Library, says this of the "After the War" course:

This course will attempt to define the major problems which must be faced after the war and to outline the most important proposals which have been brought forward for their solution. It will start with a discussion of general aims and an analysis of lessons to be learned from Versailles and the twenty years between wars. It will then take up such problems as the question of a negotiated vs. an imposed peace; the shift from a war to a peace economy; types of international political organization such as an Anglo-American alliance, a revived League of Nations, a union of the democracies, or regional federations; international economic policies in regard to gold, tariffs, and raw materials; armaments, and the roles of Germany, the British Empire, and the United States.

Looking into the past is a course on "The Backgrounds of Modern Civilization." In 1940 this course took up The Renaissance, and last year the 17th Century. This year Dr. Chase, Dr. Pfattelcher, Mr. Grew, and Mr. Hayes will take up the 18th Century.

Symposiums Popular

The symposiums have been very popular, and this year's symposium on Great Plays should prove no exception, for it takes up plays from Sophocles' "Antigone" down to O'Neill's "Mourning Becoms Electra." For four years symposiums were offered on Biography, with over 80 in attendance each year. Great Books were discussed in 1940 and 1941.

Very popular have been the Exercise for Health course of Frank Di Clementi, and Harold Phinney's Square Dancing. These are being repeated.

There are three courses on art, and in music there will be an interpretation of Wagnerian operas. The Effective Speaking courses have been going with increasing popularity each year since 1935. There are other courses in psychology, ethics, literature, science and photography.

More than half the registrants last year were from out of town. There were 200 from Andover south of Morton street, 118 from Andover north of Morton, and 50 from Shawsheen Village. North Andover sent 52 and Methuen 70, while 184 came from Lawrence. A special bus is provided for the Lawrencians. Twenty-five other towns are represented, with 54 coming from Lowell, and 24 from Haverhill.

As in the past two years there is to be a course directed by one of the town groups. Two years ago the Adventurers gave a course, and last year the Historical Society conducted one. This year the staff of the Memorial Hall Library will conduct a course on "The Reading Interests of Boys and Girls."

Community Meeting Held

President Michael Bell presided at the regular monthly meeting of the Community Association. William Riley was elected treasurer, and James Butler reported on the plans for the minstrel show to be held in February. Mrs. Archie Dumont told of her plans for the Christmas party to be held the 20th. It was voted to donate the sum of $5 to the Red Cross.

TOWN GOVERNMENT

Snyder Enters Race Service Club Hears

With town elections still three months away, two Andover residents have already announced their candidacy for the vacancy caused by the recent resignation of Selectman Howell F. Shepard. William J. Snyder, night janitor of the public schools for the past several years, this week put his hat in the ring. Mr. Snyder is a World War veteran, having enlisted at the age of 15 and served overseas for twelve months.

School Committee Meets

A leave of absence to extend for the duration of the emergency was given at Tuesday's meeting of the local school committee to Donald D. Dunn, supervisor of physical education in the public schools. Mr. Dunn has just received a commission as a lieutenant, senior grade, in the Navy, and expects to begin active service before Christmas. He will serve in the Navy as an instructor in the extensive physical training program sponsored by that branch of the service under Lieutenant-Commander Gene Tunney.

The work of the physical education department has been well planned in advance, however, and, as Mr. Dunn's leave will coincide with the beginning of the annual Christmas vacation in the public schools, no action is expected to be taken on a rearrangement of present teaching schedules until the January meeting of the board. At any rate, no special meeting is expected to be called to deal with the situation.

Also at the meeting, it was recommended by Supt. Kenneth L. Sherman that Miss Anne Harnedy, now principal of the Shawshen grammar school, be appointed to the principalship of the North school, and it was so voted by the committee.

After the report of the building and grounds committee was read, relative to the appointment of a night fireman at the central school system, it was voted to appoint James Waldie to the position at a salary of $25 a week.

Following the report of the teachers' committee, Kenneth L. Sherman was re-elected superintendent of schools at a salary of $4,200 per year. Warrants of bills and accounts for $16,922.21 were read and approved by the committee members.

Prevent Break At Hartigan Drug Store

Police Capture Trio After Search; Three Lawrence Men Questioned On Other Recent Breaks; Case Continued At District Court This Morning.

An attempted break into the Hartigan Drug store around 1:30 this morning was prevented by Officer George Dufton of the local police department, who, making his rounds on Main street, caught one of the men in the act of forcing the lock, pursued him a short distance, and gave the alarm at the police station. Officers George Dufton and Arthur Jowett, and Officers Frank McBride and Carl Stevens on Main street, succeeded in capturing a trio later found to be wanted for questioning on Lawrence and North Andover breaks, and their case was continued at the Lawrence District court this morning.

According to the police report, Officer Dufton was leaving the Andover National Bank building, on his customary rounds in the business district, when he saw an old and noisy car come out of Park street, proceed south on Main street, and come to a stop outside the post office. One man left the car and crossed towards Hartigan's; the car remained where it was, and its lights were extinguished.

Dufton had already decided that there was something suspicious afoot, and, as he walked towards the savings bank, he heard a door rattling across the street. Crossing towards the drugstore, he surprised a man fumbling with the lock; at the same time seeing he was discovered, the man began to walk towards the rear of the Andover Press building.

As both broke into a run, Dufton called on the man to stop; as the man kept on running, he threatened to fire. At this point, the miscreant practically dived through a hedge near the Gilliard estate and in back of the Press building, and there, due to the darkness of the fog, Dufton lost the pursuit.

Coming into the police station on the run, he reported the break, and Sergeant David Nicoll, on night deck duty, directed him and Officer Arthur Jowett to go towards the front and rear of Barnard street in an attempt to cut the men off. Meanwhile, Officers McBride and Stevens cruised the district in the police car.

Dufton met what he recognized as the same noisy, ancient model car at Bartlet street between the Chestnut and Park street intersections, and ordered it to stop. Officer Jowett had meanwhile come upon the scene, and two men were taken into custody, searched, and brought to the police station.

A search for a third man believed to have been part of the gang proved fruitless, and the police car headed down North Main street in the belief that he was attempting to escape towards Lawrence. They caught him thumbing a ride on North Main street, and brought him to the station, where his accomplices were being held.

The names of the men were found to be William S. Strong, Jr., 20, Arthur J. Barry, 21, and Paul T. Hendrick, all of 227 Broadway, Lawrence. The car registration was found to be in the name of the latter young man's father, William F. Hendrick, of 238 Broadway, Lawrence.

For a long while, the trio would admit nothing, but finally, after intensive questioning by Sgt. Nicoll and Officer Jowett, they confessed to the break.

They were brought before the Lawrence District Court this morning, charged with breaking and entering in the night with intent to commit a larceny. Pleading guilty, they were held in $1000 bail apiece, and the case was continued to Monday in order that their records can be definitely established.

Four recent breaks, two in Lawrence, two in North Andover, are believed to have been committed by the trio. A recent burglary in Lannon's Cash Market in North Andover is very similar to last night's affair, and the three men have been tentatively identified as those seen escaping recently from a break at the Renney drugstore there by the store owner and Chief Alfred McKee of the North Andover police. Albert's Cash Market, in Lawrence, was broken into last night, and three slugs and 520 pennies in bank wrappers were stolen, also last night, from Casey's drugstore, a sub-postoffice in Lawrence. It is believed that Mr. Casey, by means of the bank wrappers on the money, found on the person of one of the thieves, can fix their responsibility for the larceny.

All these things being so, it seems evident that the alertness of Andover police has put a final stop to the activities of a gang which has been operating successfully in this vicinity for quite some time but which has, till now, successfully resisted attempts by the police of our neighboring communities to apprehend them. All in all, it looks like a good night's work.

All-Stars End Season With 7-All Petralia Tie

The Andover All-Stars, local representative in the large Greater Lawrence amateur football circle, closed last Sunday a season that will look good on the record books in time to come. The score: All-Stars 7, Petralias 7.

The local eleven has played most of the best teams in its class in this vicinity, has won six games, lost one, tied two. Currently, they claim the Greater Lawrence championship, but, since this is an unofficial title at best, no playoff system will be evolved.

Sunday's game saw the All-Stars go into an early lead when Parsons tossed a long pass to Neil, who took it on the five and went over without a hand being laid on him. The extra point, which was to prove the margin between defeat and tie, was kicked by Parsons.

The Petralias seemed to have the edge in the rest of the contest, moving down within the defenders' 20-yard line several times. They were unable to score until, late in the third period, Sasso whipped a long pass to Montefusco, speedy halfback, in the end zone. The extra point was made by rushing.

Andover made a strong attempt to break the deadlock during the last period. A sustained drive brought them down to the one-yard line, where they lost possession of the ball on downs. The return kick traveled out only to the thirty, and, after punching out a first down, the Stars lost possession on the 20. The game ended with the ball in Petralia possession and the drive definitely stopped.

Abbot Academy

Wendelyn O. Hilty, head of the Plymouth Ski School, talked to the students yesterday afternoon (Wednesday) on the subject of skiing, and supplemented his talk with moving pictures. For more than a week now the girls at Abbot have been ready for their favorite winter sport, and all they need is a blizzard to set them off.

The Abbot Christian Association will conduct the vesper service on Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The students are spending most of their free time these days with their defense courses, their preparations for the traditional Abbot Christmas celebrations, and their activities in connection with the party for Andover children, their gifts to the residents of the Home for the Aged, and their annual Christmas box for the Hindman Settlement in Kentucky. Fifty-nine dolls are being dressed by the members of the Senior class, to be included in the Hindman box.

TOMORROW—"Messiah" By Orchestra And Choir

Tickets for tomorrow night's performance of Handel's "Messiah" presented by the Andover Community Orchestra in the Memorial Auditorium of Punchard High School, are still available, though all present signs point to a very full house. The pasteboards have been collected from the various places of sale and are now to be had only on application to Mrs. J. S. Barss, telephone 1317-J, or at the door. Mrs. Barss will be at home this evening and all day Friday to receive telephone reservations for tickets, which will be held at the door until 8 p. m.

Recent additions to the list of patrons and patronesses are Mr. and Mrs. Philip K. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Ripley P. Bullen, Fred E. Cheever, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Fitts, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Howe, and Mr. and Mrs. L. Dennis Peterkin of Andover; and Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Bragdon and Mr. and Mrs. G. Chychele Waterston of North Andover.

Last night at 9:30 over Station WLAW The Andover Male Choir and the Mixed Chorus, under the direction of J. Everett Collins, gave a program consisting of several of the choruses from the "Messiah" and some of the Male Choir's regular repertory arranged for men's voices, assisted by Raymond Wilkinson as organ soloist. G. G. Benedict, publicity director for the Community Orchestra, spoke briefly, telling something of the history of the organization and its concert series for the current season.

TOMORROW—Fair And Entertainment In Vale

"The Christmas Stocking" is the general theme for the annual fair and entertainment to be put on in the Ballardvale community room tomorrow afternoon and evening by the ladies of the Methodist church.

Each booth will be connected in some way with Christmas, with tables for candy, aprons, novelties, white elephants, and grabs. An entertainment will be presented in the evening, featuring a play called "The Incurable Optimist," with a cast of Ballardvale residents, and two entertainers especially secured for the occasion, William H. Chaff, xylophonist, and Miss Mildred Longbottom, monologist.

The doors will open at 3 o'clock for the sale of articles, and at 7 o'clock for the entertainment, at which admission will be charged. Tickets may be obtained from any of the table chairmen or their aides, and will be on sale at the door. The prices: 28 cents for adults, 17 for children.

SATURDAY—Concert By Phillips Musical Clubs

A concert by the combined musical clubs of Phillips Academy will take place next Saturday evening at Rogers Hall in Lowell. The groups have been rehearsing regularly since the beginning of the year under the direction of Dr. Carl Pfatteicher and John T. Burke of the faculty. Saturday night's program:

SATURDAY—Miss Davis Shows Puppets In N. Andover

At 7 o'clock Saturday evening, Miss Margaret Davis, director of the Andover Guild, will stage a puppet show at the North Parish Unitarian Church in North Andover, as part of the entertainment at the annual Christmas sale put on by the Women's Alliance of the church. She will be assisted by James Bissett of the Guild staff, and by Miss Irene Shorten.

The play, to be produced entirely by some 30 puppets, will be the familiar "Night Before Christmas." Act I will take place in the mythical Santa's Workshop; Act II will depict his annual Christmas eve visitation. During one intermission, a puppet clown named Tony will play on the xylophone, and at the conclusion of the program a patriotic number will be staged. The show, naturally enough, is intended primarily for children, but, as Miss Davis points out, the adults usually get more enjoyment out of it than their youthful charges.

A puppet differs from a marionette, it seems, in that it is worked by the hands of the operator, not by means of strings. Miss Davis has been putting on puppet shows at the Guild and other places for several years now, and the North Andover show will be her fourth given under the auspices of the Women's Alliance.

Puppets will also have a part in a show at the Andover Guild some time around the middle of January, by which the Guild hopes to raise enough money to care for a Chinese orphan for the balance of the year. Details of the entertainment are to be announced later.

SATURDAY—Garden Club Decoration Tour

When the Andover Garden Club sponsors a Christmas decoration tour on Saturday, December 13, decorations arranged by its members will be on view at four local homes, those of Mrs. Claude M. Fuess, Mrs. James Gould, Mrs. Horace M. Poynter and Mrs. Leonard F. James. The homes will be open from 2 till 6 o'clock for the benefit of war relief.

Tickets are now on sale, and may be purchased at the Andover Bookstore, or from Mrs. Nathaniel Stowers, Miss Anne Penniman, or Mrs. Herbert Farnsworth.

SATURDAY—Quartet Gives Concert At Abbot

TUESDAY—Distinguished Canadian To Lecture

A distinguished Canadian statesman comes to Andover to make an address in George Washington Hall next Tuesday, when Sir Herbert Ames, former secretary of the League of Nations and member of the Canadian parliament, speaks on the subject, "The Canadian Beaver Had Wings." The lecture will begin at 8:15, and is open to the public with no charge of admission.

Sir Herbert will accompany his commentary with moving pictures, describing the work of the British R. C. A. F. in Canada and the British air training plan. From this firsthand knowledge, he will compare flying conditions today with those in 1918, and tell why the super-planes of today require super-pilots. His pictures will show, among other things, how students learn to fly, to fight, to drop bombs, and, if the worst comes to worst,
to bail out.

All Is Fare in War, Even Stew

"War is war, and it has to be photographed."

LIFE magazine has had many war pictures, some of the most recent of them having been from Russia. They've been a bit on the terrifying side, for they've painted war as it is, showing the victims of a world gone mad. To look at them, one would think that it takes a man with a peculiarly hard-boiled, sanguine character to take such pictures, but the person who took those pictures and who made that remark is not hard-boiled and she's not sanguine.

Yes, it's a "she," and a "she" in the fullest sense of the word. Margaret Bourke-White is a name known the world over, for she's the most famous woman photographer in the world, and you won't find the names of many men photographers more famous. But the woman that

He concludes that Britain alone cannot overcome Germany's numerical advantage in aircraft, but that American super-planes and Canadian super-pilots may yet turn the scale.

DECEMBER 13—Rummage Sale By Legion Auxiliary

The ladies' auxiliary to Andover Post 8, American Legion, is planning a rummage sale, to be held in the Legion rooms on Park street next Saturday, December 13. Anyone having donations for the sale is asked to communicate with Mrs.
Thomas Dea, chairman, or Mrs.
Eva Muise, or to bring them to the Legion rooms Friday afternoon or evening.

Also planned by the auxiliary is a Christmas party for children up to 12 years old, of post and auxiliary members, to be held December 20 in the Legion hall. Those planning to attend should notify Mrs. H. Garrison Holt, telephone 117-W, or Mrs. Eva Muise, 43-W.
Mrs. Holt is general chairman of the affair.

DECEMBER 14—Miss Slattery To Speak In Vale

The people in Ballardvale and vicinity are to have the privilege of hearing Miss Margaret Slattery speak at the auditorium of the Union Congregational Church at 4 o'clock, December 14.

Miss Slattery is a well-known lecturer and author, and is personally known to many in Andover.
She has travelled extensively, and is well acquainted with the news and problems of many nations. Her books are widely used as lessons for teen-age pupils by Sunday schools, and her talk in the Vale on the "Night and the Star" should be well attended.

MAIL FOR EUROPE

Do you have any Christmas mail going to Europe this year?
A good many do, it seems, as the local post office has already handled a large amount of transoceanic missives. Most of it goes to Great Britain, as there are very few people of German nationality in Andover.

Any packages going across?
Well, not many; it costs 30 cents for each half-ounce of material to England, and bulky packages call for a rather high fee.

Transatlantic mail, by the way, must be in by December 10 or 11 in order to reach its destination by Christmas. And its a good idea to get all your Christmas mail in early this year; its more convenient for the post office, for you, and the mail recipients.

ing, but she could have spoken on the theory of relativity and still have charmed her audience. She's really Mrs. Erskine Caldwell, as the Clipper agent in Lisbon found out after arguing with her and Mr.
Caldwell to the effect that there was no passage for Mrs. Caldwell, just one seat left for a "lady named Bourke-White."

It was a hunch that things would soon be a-doing in Russia that sent the couple off last spring across the Pacific. China's rickety airplanes provided them with some uneasy moments, and also some moments of delay when they found that almost any menu they picked out in the Chinese cookbook turned out to be stewed chicken. Also during one of the delays they brought the benefits of western civilization nearer the Orient by teaching the Chinese natives a game called Chinese checkers.

Arriving in Moscow Miss Bourke-White found a city that had improved tremendously since her last visit there in 1932. She also found that even with non-aggression pacts the Russians did not trust the Germans. In addressing one group of graduates Joseph Stalin had said: "Germany is your real enemy" but that information was not allowed to trickle out of the country. Soon, however, Germany made her attack, Great Britain and the United States expressed their sympathy and willingness to help, and the Russian people, with a unity that was remarkable, pitched in to help defeat the Nazis.

Then the photographer's task began. She told many interesting narratives of air-raids, scenes at the front, narrow escapes from death.
Through it all ran a feeling of pride in the job the Russians are doing, and it's that job, she said, that makes America more secure.

Following the talk a large number of the audience went to the Art Gallery to witness some of the pictures taken by Miss Bourke-White.

POLICE BLOTTER

Andover's police department took stern measures, this week, to put a stop to prevalent all-day or all-night parking, as well as double parking in the more populous sections of town, which have become a serious traffic menace. Very often cars left parked at the square all day prevent as many as five or six other car operators from using the parking places, and as a result, they often prefer to transact their business in some other town where space is more readily available. Such a system can do a great deal of damage to the up-to-date business section of an up-to-date town; yet it indicated that the worst offenders are merchants and clerks, to whom plenty of parking space should be a matter of more than ordinary interest.

Preparing for the heavy influx of traffic during the Christmas season, Andover police began, this week, a campaign of tagging or removing at the operator's expense, cars which have been either improperly parked, left overtime in one of the restricted parking spaces, or parked where forbidden. The town by-laws, of course, make full provision for such action, but they have not, in recent months, been carried out to their letter.

Another innovation: starting this week, the police department will remove, at the owner's expense, cars left standing all night on any street in town. This becomes necessary with the advance of winter, and the necessity of night plowing of the town highways which will shortly become a reality. From December 15 to April 1, the police cruiser will, on its rounds during the hours from 1 and 6 a.m., tow away all cars found on the streets.

American Legion Auxiliary

"What are the most important things in your community, and what is your town doing about them" was the question asked three members of the auxiliary who, last Sunday evening, took part in a radio quiz program conducted over station WESX in Salem. The members who had to think up the answers were Mrs. Eva Muise, Mrs. George Cilley and Mrs. Michael Dell.

Last Thursday evening, auxiliary members witnessed a demonstration put on by a Lawrence laundry, including pictures of a trip to Alaska by its superintendent.

Future activities of the association: First, a Christmas party for veterans at the Danvers state hospital on Tuesday evening, December 16. Second, a similar affair at the Middleton sanitarium on December 18. Third, the regular Christmas party for auxiliary members in the Legion hall at the regular meeting December 26. The auxiliary will also look out for all hospitalized local veterans during the holiday season. It looks like a pretty full schedule.

Service Club Hears Model Railway Hobbyist

At last Thursday's meeting of the Andover Service club, Lester D. Friend of Marblehead exhibited several live steam model railroad trains and discussed his experiences working with men following this particular hobby all over the country. Also shown by him were several reels of motion pictures of model trains in action. He pointed out that the trains are not the toys that parents buy for their children so that they themselves can enjoy them, but working models of actual trains which are capable of carrying several men up steep grades.

Following the lecture, the association voted to sponsor the Christmas tree usually erected about this time in the local Square, and gave some consideration to the parking problem in Andover's shopping district.

Square And Compass Club

Tonight at 8:00, members of the Andover Square and Compass club will assemble in their hall to watch a special moving picture program put on by the Canadian National railways. The pictures are all in technicolor, and depict many beautiful scenes in the Canadian Rockies, Banff National Park and Alaska. The entire program is planned to last about an hour and a half.

November Club Notes

Plan Meetings

The Art department will meet with Mrs. Edward C. Nichols of 31 Wolcott avenue next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The literature department will meet at the home of Miss Kate Jenkins, 116 Main street, on Wednesday at 3 o'clock.

The dramatic department will meet with Mrs. Walter Tomlinson of 10 William street, on December 12 at 2:30. Members are asked to note the change of time.

Mrs. Frank Mansfield Taylor will present the third lecture in her series on "History in the Making" next Wednesday morning at 9:45.

"Two Tables Of Bridge" By Shawsheen Women's Club

The customary gossip and scandal were prominent in "Two Tables of Bridge," a one-act comedy presented by the dramatic department of the Shawsheen Village Woman's Club last Monday evening in Balmoral Hall. The characters were portrayed as follows:

Hazel Graham, Mrs. Edwin Bramley; Lou Allerton, Mrs. Lester Thompson (in place of her mother, Mrs. Garfield Chase who was taken suddenly ill a few days before the presentation.); Minnie Leadbetter, Mrs. Leon Fields; Lil Meyers, Mrs. Arthur Jackson; Blanche Haverford, Mrs. Dino Valz; Harriet Binks, Mrs. Clyde Fore; Mrs. Pruett; Mrs. Frank Kefferstan; Emma Lang, Mrs. E. V. Lovely; Katie Joyce, Mrs. Harison Brown.

The play, written by Lucy Kennedy Brown, was directed by Mrs. O. J. Durkin, chairman of the Dramatic Department.

As an added attraction, Mrs. Betty Campbell Saunders of Lawrence delighted the audience with three monologues.

Rebekahs Install Officers; Receive New Members

At a meeting in Fraternal Hall Monday evening, the Indian Ridge Lodge of Rebekahs held a reception and initiation of new members. Deputy President Mrs. Carter and her staff of Amesbury acted as installing officers, while visitors were present from Haverhill, Lawrence and Amesbury.

The next Rebekah meeting will take the form of a Christmas party, to be held December 21 in Fraternal Hall. The Christmas party of the past noble grands will be held this coming Monday. Supper will be served at Luther Witham's on South Main street, and the members will afterwards adjourn to the home of Mrs. James Edgar for the party.

Andover Mothers' Club

The next meeting of the Andover Mothers' Club will be held Thursday, December 11, at 2 o'clock, and will take the form of a beano party to be given at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Dufresne of Brechin terrace. Besides Mrs. Dufresne, the committee includes Mrs. Mary Feeney, Mrs. Susan Hastings, and Mrs. Eva Symonds.

A Christmas dinner party is to be held at the Little Red Schoolhouse in North Andover on the following Thursday, December 18, starting at 1:00, at which gifts will be exchanged by the members. Those planning to be guests at the party should contact Mrs. Fred Collins as soon as possible.

The refreshment committee for January consists of Mrs. Annie Webb, Mrs. Charlotte Collins and Mrs. Carrie Buchan.

The endless chain this month was won by Mrs. Bertha Folley.

We're Lucky

How many of you realize how very, very lucky we are, here in Andover? And how many of you take advantage of the many opportunities that our fortunate situation as the site of Phillips and Abbot Academies offers us?

Last week we were privileged to hear Margaret Bourke-White, the world's most famous woman photographer, and anyone in town could have gone up to George Washington Hall to have heard her without paying a single cent. There have been many other noted speakers brought here to Andover by the Academy, speakers who usually go only to the larger communities.

In the arts, too, we have been indeed fortunate, for the singers and musicians brought to Andover by the Academies have been artists who command very high prices in Boston, New York, and all the other large cities. Then, too, the Addison Art Gallery brings to us the exhibits that only those living in large cities or having convenient access to them can see.

We're fortunate, too, in our Community organizations. Next Tuesday night the Adventurers, which is Andover's own "Little Theatre Group," will present the famous Kaufman-Hart play "You Can't Take It With You," a hit on the stage and a hit on the screen, and a sure-fire hit when the Adventurers present it. Anybody who has seen an Adventurers' play knows that nothing is left undone in the effort to present a really finished production; if you haven't seen one, Tuesday would be a good time to start.

A newer organization, but one of which the town can be equally as proud, is the Andover Community Orchestra. The past performances of this group have been very well received and tomorrow night it will present Handel's "Messiah," a real undertaking, but one which the Community Orchestra has the ability to do well. Assisting it will be another organization which has brought the town fame throughout New England, the Andover Male Choir. New, and as yet unheard here, but well worth hearing, is the chorus of women voices.

One can keep one's self very busy just by staying here in Andover. And after all, that's not a bad idea at all.

A Phantom Committee

At last the secret is out about the street lighting committee: it just hasn't met since town meeting.

Remember a few town meetings ago when, because of the apparent lack of information about street lighting costs, and the apparent lack of meetings at which the committee members could ascertain any information, the town for a period of an hour or so was on record as having voted no funds for street lighting. Figuratively the town was in the dark; literally it was going to be, too. However, an appropriation was finally voted on what scant information could be gathered together at the time.

It looks as if lighting strikes twice in the same place, for this new lighting committee is apparently acting exactly the same as the old one.

Two thoughts occur: either the lighting committee is not fulfilling its duty, or it doesn't have much duty to fulfill. If the latter is true, let's not have a committee; let's pass the responsibility on to one of our committees which meet regularly and which have clerical help to answer letters and to send letters to the Gas and Electric company when more lights are needed. If the former thought is the correct one, let's have a new committee which will not treat lightly its lighting responsibility.

What a Lot

Christmas time is Christmas seal time. There's no better way to demonstrate the true Christmas spirit than by buying Christmas seals and using them on all your Christmas mailing.

The campaign against tuberculosis, which the Christmas seal plan has aided so very greatly, has done much in the past two decades to bring health back to many and to ward off the disease from countless others. Once tuberculosis—and it wasn't very long ago, either—was one of the incurables; to say a person had tuberculosis was to say that death in not too long a time was a certainty.

But those little seals that cost but a penny a piece have done wonders. Today, many persons are enjoying health, are looking forward to years of a happy life, because of these little seals. Once they were ill, once the disease that had killed many had them in their grasp, but they were given a rest treatment, or their lungs were temporarily collapsed by gas injections or by removal of ribs. Your little Christmas seals helped finance the research that made these discoveries possible; your future purchases of seals will help further, and they will also help in the work that the summer rest camps for youngsters are doing.

In Andover Mrs. Lyman Cheever is in charge of the sale this year. If you haven't bought already, do so now.

Bossy Almost Did

Bossy Gillis didn't make it in Newburyport—but he almost did. The downriver city of course would have received more publicity through the nation if Bossy had won, for after all not many communities elect men who have been running their campaigns from jail!

The closeness of the decision makes one wonder just what the people of Newburyport were thinking of. They've had Bossy in the mayor's seat before, and the city achieved some publicity which it could well have done without. And yet nearly a majority of those voting Tuesday, cast their ballots for the man who has been biding his time at the request of the Commonwealth in the Essex County jail.

Democracy has its faults. Sometimes we think it should have been spelled "Demo-crazy." The less wisely we can vote, the more we seem to like it, and the result usually is such conditions as they've had for years in our neighboring city of Lawrence—and some of our own elections in Andover haven't resulted as wisely as they should have. In Lawrence, the lack of unwise, narrow and narrow-sighted voting, is aided greatly by the lack of any force of leadership for good in the community. Imagine it! After its commissioner of public safety has been sent down to Middleton to be a classmate of Bossy Gillis, after his campaign manager has been convicted of job selling, after many members of the school committee have been either thrown into jail or indicted by a grand jury, there has been no movement in Lawrence at all to clean the city up. No one seems to have the courage to come out and say: "Let's not have our city tainted in the future."

Democracy is going to kill itself some day because the voters and those who have it within their power to steer public opinion, don't do their jobs properly. If we want Democracy, we've got to earn it.

Voting Blindly

December 16th is primary day in this Congressional district. At that time we will make a preliminary choice of a man to represent us in Congress, in what may be the most important Congress in our history. Members of each party should be sure to go to the polls on that day to register his choice so that in the finals the parties will have a candidate of whom they can be proud.

There are some who have filed nomination papers who frankly would not do our district justice, to put it mildly. In fact, some of them now have a record of public service which merits them only retirement from public service.

Our Way Of Life

What are we waiting for? We're in a war, but we don't seem to realize it. We're very critical of France, for being unprepared; we're very critical of Great Britain for muddling along and taking life easy without taking the threat from Nazism seriously.

Aren't we doing the same thing? Aren't we so intent on enjoying "our way of life" that we're not doing much to keep that way of life? We're sending arms, it's true, but not nearly enough. We'd much rather keep our "rights" than give any of them up for a while, in order to protect those rights. We want our cars, we want our luxuries, we want everything that we've been used to. But Germany became strong because her people gave up much that they could have wanted, too; we're going to have to give up before we have someone else make us give up.

We're in war. Let's act as if we were. Let's get right down now to the serious business of winning this war.

Educational Life

Adult Education Council

Monday evening in the John Dove School, representatives of 21 local organizations met with Andover school officials. Their purpose: to investigate means of service with the adult education department of the local schools in forming the local branch of a national citizenship education program.

Here's the background: about 5,000,000 aliens were registered throughout the United States in last year's roll-call. About ten states were outstanding in the number of aliens resident in them; of these, Massachusetts was fourth. In all the state, there are 35,000 aliens; here in Andover, about 2200.

The Federal Department of Justice, the Naturalization and Immigration service, and the Works Progress Administration all regard this as a highly undesirable state of affairs, so much so that they have combined to allot $14,000,000 to be allotted throughout the country in order to expand adult education programs wherever they are now established. In Massachusetts, working through the state department of education and the local school boards, money will be allotted to each community. Andover itself currently spends about $1200 on adult education; the W. P. A. has agreed to triple that sum. In order that the town may receive the money, however, some sort of central counsel or advisory board must be set up to co-operate with the state and national managements. The Andover board is to be made up of representatives of various local agencies and organizations.

Monday night's meeting developed a way to form such a counsel; formal organization and election of officers will take place at the next meeting, December 15, in the John Dove school. At the meeting, Miss Mary L. Guyton, state supervisor of adult education and state director for the N. C. E. P. sketched the functions of state and town boards, while Miss Margaret Wallace of the administration headquarters of the W. P. A. discussed the more technical aspects of the work to be undertaken. It was emphasized that the whole thing must be kept on a highly professional basis; teachers on the W. P. A. list are to be especially trained for this work, and no one will be accepted without such training. The amounts appropriated are to be spent on teaching, clerical work, social service expansion, materials and supplies.

Present at the meeting were representatives of industrial, civic, and educational groups. From industry: Marland Mills, Shawsheen Mills, and the Tyer Rubber Company. From civic bodies: the Shawsheen Village Women's Club, the League of Women Voters, the Service Club, the Committee of Public Safety, the British Empire War Veterans Auxiliary, the American Red Cross, Ballardvale, the North School Community Club. From educational organizations: Memorial Hall Library, Andover Guild, Andover Study Group, Public School Teachers Association, the high and junior high school principals, the International Institute, the elementary schools, the School Committee, and the Boy Scouts of America.

Andover Guild Activities

The 24 members of the Woman's committee of the Andover Guild met Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. J. Edson Andrews of Hidden road, and plans for several winter activities were made.

Since many of the older Guild members are at present members of the national armed forces, it is hoped that they will be able to be guests at the annual Christmas party and dance to be sponsored by the Guild. Complete plans for this have not as yet been made.

Attendance at the Guild has been particularly good for this time of year, and is expected to show a marked increase when bowling and basketball leagues are formed at the beginning of the new year.

John T. Hickok, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Hickok of 94 Elm street, is among the Mount Hermon school students on the Honor Roll for the period between November 3 and December 15.

Miss Frances Hartmann, who is taking a one-year's course at the University of New Hampshire, spent the holidays at her home on Elm street.

Only 18 Days Left For CHRISTMAS Shopping

There are only eighteen days left in which to do your Christmas shopping. If there is any special food item you may have in mind to make your Christmas dinner perfect, you will surely find it in this food store. We extend a cordial invitation to the ladies of Andover to visit our store this week and next. In the Grocery Department we have the finest display of food items ever shown in the town of Andover. The credit for this attractive display goes to Mr. Francis Kelly, our grocery buyer. Mr. George Markey, our fruit and vegetable buyer, has arranged three windows of the choicest fruits and vegetables that are in season now. Both Mr. Kelly and Mr. Markey will be very pleased to have the women of Andover come to see these displays even if only to window shop.

Bossy Gillis didn't make it in Newburyport—but he almost did. The downriver city of course would have received more publicity through the nation if Bossy had won, for after all not many communities elect men who have been running their campaigns from jail!

The closeness of the decision makes one wonder just what the people of Newburyport were thinking of. They've had Bossy in the mayor's seat before, and the city achieved some publicity which it could well have done without. And yet nearly a majority of those voting Tuesday, cast their ballots for the man who has been biding his time at the request of the Commonwealth in the Essex County jail.

Democracy has its faults. Sometimes we think it should have been spelled "Demo-crazy." The less wisely we can vote, the more we seem to like it, and the result usually is such conditions as they've had for years in our neighboring city of Lawrence—and some of our own elections in Andover haven't resulted as wisely as they should have. In Lawrence, the lack of unwise, narrow and narrow-sighted voting, is aided greatly by the lack of any force of leadership for good in the community. Imagine it! After its commissioner of public safety has been sent down to Middleton to be a classmate of Bossy Gillis, after his campaign manager has been convicted of job selling, after many members of the school committee have been either thrown into jail or indicted by a grand jury, there has been no movement in Lawrence at all to clean the city up. No one seems to have the courage to come out and say: "Let's not have our city tainted in the future."

Democracy is going to kill itself some day because the voters and those who have it within their power to steer public opinion, don't do their jobs properly. If we want Democracy, we've got to earn it.

Voting Blindly

December 16th is primary day in this Congressional district. At that time we will make a preliminary choice of a man to represent us in Congress, in what may be the most important Congress in our history. Members of each party should be sure to go to the polls on that day to register his choice so that in the finals the parties will have a candidate of whom they can be proud.

There are some who have filed nomination papers who frankly would not do our district justice, to put it mildly. In fact, some of them now have a record of public service which merits them only retirement from public service.

Our Way Of Life

What are we waiting for? We're in a war, but we don't seem to realize it. We're very critical of France, for being unprepared; we're very critical of Great Britain for muddling along and taking life easy without taking the threat from Nazism seriously.

Aren't we doing the same thing? Aren't we so intent on enjoying "our way of life" that we're not doing much to keep that way of life? We're sending arms, it's true, but not nearly enough. We'd much rather keep our "rights" than give any of them up for a while, in order to protect those rights. We want our cars, we want our luxuries, we want everything that we've been used to. But Germany became strong because her people gave up much that they could have wanted, too; we're going to have to give up before we have someone else make us give up.

We're in war. Let's act as if we were. Let's get right down now to the serious business of winning this war.

Educational Life

Adult Education Council

Monday evening in the John Dove School, representatives of 21 local organizations met with Andover school officials. Their purpose: to investigate means of service with the adult education department of the local schools in forming the local branch of a national citizenship education program.

Here's the background: about 5,000,000 aliens were registered throughout the United States in last year's roll-call. About ten states were outstanding in the number of aliens resident in them; of these, Massachusetts was fourth. In all the state, there are 35,000 aliens; here in Andover, about 2200.

The Federal Department of Justice, the Naturalization and Immigration service, and the Works Progress Administration all regard this as a highly undesirable state of affairs, so much so that they have combined to allot $14,000,000 to be allotted throughout the country in order to expand adult education programs wherever they are now established. In Massachusetts, working through the state department of education and the local school boards, money will be allotted to each community. Andover itself currently spends about $1200 on adult education; the W. P. A. has agreed to triple that sum. In order that the town may receive the money, however, some sort of central counsel or advisory board must be set up to co-operate with the state and national managements. The Andover board is to be made up of representatives of various local agencies and organizations.

Monday night's meeting developed a way to form such a counsel; formal organization and election of officers will take place at the next meeting, December 15, in the John Dove school. At the meeting, Miss Mary L. Guyton, state supervisor of adult education and state director for the N. C. E. P. sketched the functions of state and town boards, while Miss Margaret Wallace of the administration headquarters of the W. P. A. discussed the more technical aspects of the work to be undertaken. It was emphasized that the whole thing must be kept on a highly professional basis; teachers on the W. P. A. list are to be especially trained for this work, and no one will be accepted without such training. The amounts appropriated are to be spent on teaching, clerical work, social service expansion, materials and supplies.

Present at the meeting were representatives of industrial, civic, and educational groups. From industry: Marland Mills, Shawsheen Mills, and the Tyer Rubber Company. From civic bodies: the Shawsheen Village Women's Club, the League of Women Voters, the Service Club, the Committee of Public Safety, the British Empire War Veterans Auxiliary, the American Red Cross, Ballardvale, the North School Community Club. From educational organizations: Memorial Hall Library, Andover Guild, Andover Study Group, Public School Teachers Association, the high and junior high school principals, the International Institute, the elementary schools, the School Committee, and the Boy Scouts of America.

Andover Guild Activities

The 24 members of the Woman's committee of the Andover Guild met Wednesday morning at the home of Mrs. J. Edson Andrews of Hidden road, and plans for several winter activities were made.

Since many of the older Guild members are at present members of the national armed forces, it is hoped that they will be able to be guests at the annual Christmas party and dance to be sponsored by the Guild. Complete plans for this have not as yet been made.

Attendance at the Guild has been particularly good for this time of year, and is expected to show a marked increase when bowling and basketball leagues are formed at the beginning of the new year.

John T. Hickok, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Hickok of 94 Elm street, is among the Mount Hermon school students on the Honor Roll for the period between November 3 and December 15.

Miss Frances Hartmann, who is taking a one-year's course at the University of New Hampshire, spent the holidays at her home on Elm street.

Only 18 Days Left For CHRISTMAS Shopping

There are only eighteen days left in which to do your Christmas shopping. If there is any special food item you may have in mind to make your Christmas dinner perfect, you will surely find it in this food store. We extend a cordial invitation to the ladies of Andover to visit our store this week and next. In the Grocery Department we have the finest display of food items ever shown in the town of Andover. The credit for this attractive display goes to Mr. Francis Kelly, our grocery buyer. Mr. George Markey, our fruit and vegetable buyer, has arranged three windows of the choicest fruits and vegetables that are in season now. Both Mr. Kelly and Mr. Markey will be very pleased to have the women of Andover come to see these displays even if only to window shop.

The All Out Effort

Bonds For Tyer Workers

Employees receiving their pay checks at the Tyer Rubber Company last Friday morning received with them a five-page typewritten memorandum. Subject: Systematic savings by workers, through the offices of the company, for the purchase of U. S. Defense savings bonds.

Under the plan, employees would authorize the company to deduct a certain amount from their pay every week, the sum to accumulate without interest until it had reached a total sufficient to pay for a bond of any stipulated denomination. Participation in the plan, it was emphasized, would be purely voluntary on the part of the employee; deductions would be made only upon receipt of a signed form by him, and he would decide what amount of money would be deducted, how often, and for what denomination bond.

Other factors were carefully attended to. Fifty cents would be the minimum deductible amount for employees paid weekly, with larger contributions accepted only in multiples of the minimum. For salaried employees, the terms were: minimum, $2.00, larger deductions in multiples of $1.00. The authorization could be terminated at any time, and the employee's accumulated savings returned to him, provided a week's notice was given on a cancellation form to be provided. Death of an employee, or his leaving the employ of the company, would result in his net savings being returned to him.

The company was to make remittances to the government as soon as the full total had been reached by the employee, but the bond would be mailed or delivered to him. Once the money was turned over to the federal treasury, the company was to assume no further responsibility. It would, however, give proper notification to the employee at the time the full amount was forwarded to Washington.

Fight For Freedom Society Organized For Andover

Last night, at the Goldsmith library of Punchard high school, was held the initial meeting of a group of Andover citizens interested in the Fight for Freedom organization. Tentative plans were made for organizing a local branch, and for holding a mass meeting some time around the middle of January, for which a speaker from the national movement will be secured. A steering committee was appointed to make further plans for the organization, its members to be James Gould, William Poland, Harold W. Leitch and Elmer J. Grover.

The Fight for Freedom committee stands for an immediate declaration of war on Germany, believing that immediate action against the Reich government on all fronts, military, economic and social, is necessary that the victorious progress of Nazism may be checked before it is too late. They believe that the turning point of the war has already been reached.

Those attending last night's meeting, presided over by James Gould, Phillips Academy treasurer, were Rev. Herman C. Johnson, Eugene V. Lovely, Howard Sawyer, James Hooper Grew, Arthur Coleman, Frank R. Petty, Charles J. Fettes, William Poland, Harold W. Leitch, Wallace Brimer, Charles Arnold, C. Carleton Kimball, Dr. Alston H. Chase, Miss Marguerite Hearsey, and Melville Weston of North Andover.

BALLARDVALE

Shower Held

Miss Elizabeth Stein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stein of Andover street, was tendered a miscellaneous shower Tuesday evening. The party was held in the vestry of the Union Congregational Church, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Miss Stein received many beautiful gifts from her friends and former schoolmates.

Graduating from Punchard High with the class of 1940, she since has been employed as assistant postmistress at the Ballardvale post office.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, and a social time enjoyed. Miss Stein is to become the bride of Gordon Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall of Dacombe road, on Christmas Day.

P. T. A. Meeting Tonight

The fathers are the important people at the P. T. A. meeting this evening, since they are planning the social and furnishing the refreshments. A short business meeting will be held and plans completed for the children's Christmas party to be held December 23.

Personals

Mrs. Frank Petty, Mrs. Edwin Brown, Mrs. Ernest Seymore, Mrs. Harry Dennison, and Mrs. James Schofield attended the tea given by the Andover P. T. A. for parents and teachers of the eighth and ninth grade pupils.

Little Marilyn Davis of Center street is ill in the Lawrence General Hospital.

Walter Simon of Hall avenue is recuperating after an attack of influenza.

The bridge in the Vale called the "Dry Bridge," situated at the Lowell railroad tracks, has been finished. The bridge has been a menace for several years, since it was meant to be only a temporary structure, put there to replace one burned by fire about 25 years ago. It was considered inadequate for the present day conditions.

New Homes, New Owners

The four-room cottage on South Main street recently built by Dana F. Perkins, has been sold to James H. and Mary J. Hart. Mr. Hart is a new teacher at the Junior High School.

The eight-room house at 25 Bartlet street, owned by Kirke G. and Florence C. Temple, has been sold to Frederick E. and Hazel L. Griffin.

The eight-room early American Colonial house recently built by Alden R. and Josephine B. Taylor on Sunset Rock road, has been sold to Dorothy E. Hann.

The eight-room Dutch Colonial house and eight acres of land owned by Mrs. Lotta Johnson at 1001 Turnpike street, North Andover, Mass., has been sold to Louis J. and Agnes Kmiec.

The six-room brick Dutch Colonial house on Bancroft road owned by Lenna H. Prescott, has recently been sold.

All sales were made through the W. Shirley Barnard real estate and insurance agency.

DEATHS

A resident of Andover for many years previous to his moving to California 23 years ago, Walter S. Rhodes died in Los Angeles Tuesday. While living in Andover, he had served as an overseer in the Tyer Rubber Company.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth Rhodes, sister of Mrs. David S. Burns of Wolcott avenue. The funeral will take place in California.

A. P. C. Christmas Party

The Alpha Phi Chi Sorority of the South Church will meet in the vestry of the church Thursday evening, December 11, at 8 o'clock. New members will be initiated, after which there will be a Christmas party in charge of Mrs. G. Richard Abbott and Mrs. Phillip L. Hardy, co-chairmen. Mrs. Roland Thompson is chairman of the refreshment committee, and she will be assisted by Miss Dorothy Ruhl, Mrs. Charles Cole, Mrs. Douglas Pitman, Mrs. Ada Brown and Mrs. Frank Petty.

Previous to the meeting, Group 2, with Mrs. Roy E. Hardy as chairman, will conduct a small bakery sale.

At a recent meeting of the sorority it was decided to discontinue the galloping teas until after Christmas.

Successful Whist Party At St. Augustine's

John Waldie won enough candy to last him comfortably till Christmas at a most successful whist party held at St. Augustine's parochial school hall Monday. Progressive whist was enjoyed at more than fifty tables. Mr. Waldie won the chance prize; Mrs. Alma Drummond of Lawrence won the door prize donated by State Senator Thomas J. Lane, and Mrs. Leda Schultz the punchers' prize.

League Of Women Voters

At their next meeting, to take the form of a luncheon at the Andover Inn at 12:45 Tuesday, December 16, the Andover League of Women Voters will be addressed by Prof. George Lanyi of the Department of Government of Harvard University. His subject will be connected with foreign affairs, of which the league had been making a thorough study in its weekly discussion meetings, previous to their conclusion a week ago. Mrs. Emery J. Trott will act as hostess at the gathering.

Magazines make excellent Christmas gifts. Mrs. Olive S. Warden has for sale all magazines, many at special Christmas rates. Tel. Andover 1049-J. Advt.

Drama With a Short "A"; High-Quality Screaming and Diving In "Chintz Cottage"

Several interesting things were brought to light at the performance of "Chintz Cottage," put on in the Auditorium last Friday night by Punchard's Juniors. The first was that David Brown can outdo any Hindu fakir in maintaining awkward positions for incredibly long periods of time. Second, that girls come hardy enough in this enlightened age, for two of them to carry a 170-pound fellow around with a good deal of ease. Third, that Janice Driscoll has a talent for screaming that may some day see her buried in the contracts of radio producers of murder mysteries.

The idea of the play was that there was something rotten in Denmark, as Roosevelt told Churchill after the Nazis took Copenhagen, but no one knew exactly what, how, or whyfore. One Peter (David Brown), amateur poet of the garden variety, had been found unconscious in the garden of Chintz cottage, and toted into the house by Minty, bored but glamorous debutante just down from London, and Fanny, her servant, possessor of a prominent Cockney accent among . . . other prominent features. As soon as the two affrighted females left the room, Peter revived, gazed about him in moderate alarm, and dived under the sofa. He spent the remainder of the play in other dives, alternating between diving under the sofa and into a large chest. After a while, his sister Grace joined him, and assumed the role of auxiliary domestic fugitive. As the play progressed, they began to alternate, under the sofa and in the chest, turn and turn about, resembling nothing more than an animated game of checkers.

Other factors entered to pile confusion on confusion. Aunt Agatha Tillingtop, alias Mina Manthorne, came down from London to assure herself that Minty, alias Jacqueline Verrette, had not made a runaway marriage with "the Texan." Mr. Kent, otherwise known as Arnold Schofield, was an innocent old duffer with a noble Van Dyke, who, as the saying goes, was looking seven ways for Sunday. Mrs. Dean (Betty Morgan) was an alleged stumbling block in his stumbling romance with Aunt Agatha, who, as it turned out, was most anxious to get rid of her absent-minded employer.

Other notes: The prop department did a great job. The aged bathrobe it dug up for Fanny, the cockney maid, was enough to cover it with glory for the evening. The diction was remarkably good, David Brown's being especially noticeable. Stage business was natural, and there was none too much of it, as is so often the case in an amateur production. Peter acted with commendable fortitude, being smothered under blankets and in the aforementioned chest with a great deal of relish.

The whole production went off with more than ordinary smoothness. No curtains parted at the wrong time, no wigs or moustaches came off at critical moments. But, if we were asked to pick out one feature more remarkable than another, Fanny's high-C screaming would be the logical choice. Screaming and laughing, as Director Mervin Stevens will undoubtedly admit, are the most delicate points of fine acting. Miss Driscoll can holler with the best of them. Talent scouts take notice.

WEST PARISH

Community Club Program

About forty members of the West Andover Community Club were present at the North School Thursday evening, and saw a sound film presentation by Miss Kate Fuller, executive secretary of the Lawrence Tuberculosis League. Three pictures were shown, one about "Camp Life in Boxford," one called "Goodbye Mr. Germ," and the last, "Let My People Live." Miss Fuller also gave a talk on "New Trends in Tuberculosis." Miss Olive Eldridge, who is teaching in the North School, has been head counselor at the Happy Health Camp for many years.

Andover Grange Notes

Past Lecturers' and Past Masters' Night was observed Tuesday evening by Andover Grange. Plans were completed for a baked bean supper to be held from 5 to 7 o'clock on Saturday evening, December 13. The observance will take place in Grange Hall, and will be under the auspices of the Dramatic Club.

The Eastern States Co-operative Association will hold an all-day meeting in Grange Hall next Thursday, December 11. Dinner will be served at 12:30 by the Women's Club.

Young People's Fellowship

The Young People's Fellowship of the West Church met at the parsonage on Sunday evening. A game of Biblical baseball was played, with Rev. Donald Savage asking questions on the Bible and the young members being at the bat with the answers.

92nd Birthday

David Cunningham, Andover's oldest citizen, celebrated his 92nd birthday Tuesday. He is very well, physically and mentally, takes much interest in civic affairs, and is able to do chores about his home daily. He resides in the same house on Shawsheen road in which he was born. He has six children, Joseph of Chicago, James of Dorchester, Thomas of Lawrence, Mrs. Louise Graichen of Passaic, N. J., and Frank and Helen, who reside with him.

He retired from active work 15 years ago, but since that time he has busied himself about his place, and in the summer he has a fine vegetable garden.

Lafalot Club Christmas Party

The members of the Lafalot Club held a very enjoyable Christmas party Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Russell Foster of Fletcher street. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served by Mrs. Foster, assisted by Mrs. Fred Batchelder.

Birth

On Tuesday, November 25th, a son at the Lawrence General Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bredbury of Lowell street.

Personals

Mrs. Herbert Merrick has returned to her home on Lowell street after enjoying a week's visit with friends in Brimfield.

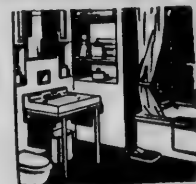

Miss Marilyn Lewis has returned to her studies at the University of New Hampshire after enjoying the Thanksgiving recess at her home on Lowell street.

Cadet Clyde Fore has returned to his studies at the New York Military Academy after enjoying the Thanksgiving recess at his home on Reservation road.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Piper have moved from Lowell street, and are now living in their newly-built home on Canterbury street.

Norman Peatman of Twin Falls, Idaho, is visiting his brothers, Arthur and John Peatman of Lowell street, and other relatives and friends in town.

Ken Sparks, Jr., of Lincoln street left yesterday for Mansfield, Vt., where he will soon assume his duties as a skiing instructor.

LIBRARY NOTES

Main Library

Recent additions to the Memorial Hall Library include the following books:

Inside Latin America—John Gunther. After the pattern of the previous books, "Inside Europe" and "Inside Asia," this study of Mexico, Central and South America draws a clear outline of the backgrounds of the countries included, their political situations and their famous leaders.

Alfred I. duPont, the Family Rebel—Marquis James. An interesting biography of the munitions magnate, in which a good deal of the family history is brought out.

Music books: I played their accompaniments—E. H. David; Memoirs of the opera—Giulio Gattil-Casazza; A treasury of Gilbert and Sullivan.

Hitler Cannot Conquer Russia—Maurice Hindus. The author backs up his claims by outlining the preparation for conditions now confronting the Russian people. He tries to show why Russia cannot be taken even though the famous cities and the wealth of the Ukraine fall into Hitler's hands.

The Ground We Stand On—John Dos Passos. Not history, but a study of the roots of the democratic traditions of America as they developed in the lives of great men, among them Roger Williams, Benjamin Franklin, Daniel Defoe, Samuel Adams and Thomas Jefferson.

Miscellaneous books of non-fiction: Dogs for profit—Johns and Naylor; America's housekeeping book—N. Y. Herald Tribune Home Institute; The Gardner's third year—Bates; American glass—McKearin; Pottery in the U. S.—Stiles; The Viking book of poetry of the English-speaking world—Aldington; Best plays of 1940-1941—Burns Mantle.

Lighter fiction titles: Enough to live on—Banning; Cross currents—Basset; Sue Barton, superintendent of nurses—Boylston; Be-

Three New Altars For St. Augustine's Church

In about three months, three new altars are to be built at St. Augustine's church, according to this week's announcement by Rev. Thomas B. Austin, O.S.A., pastor. They are to be the gift of Mrs. Maurice J. Curran, Sr., and Miss Margaret Curran, as a memorial to the late Maurice J. Curran. Frederick G. Necker of New York is to be in charge of the construction.

The high main altar will be built of marble, and will be strictly liturgical in style. The side altar on the left will also be constructed of marble in its entirety, with a mosaic picture of the Mother of Good Counsel, to whom the altar is dedicated. The marble altar on the other side will be dedicated, as at present, to St. Joseph, and a new Gothic oak floor will be laid in the sanctuary.

With the installation of the three new altars, an extensive program of redecorating the interior of the main church, begun shortly after Father Austin began his pastorate here, will be completed. Since then, the church has been completely painted, and special borders have been inscribed on the moldings.

Mrs. Wallace Leonard Speaks To Christ Church Auxiliary

Members of the day group of the Women's auxiliary to Christ Church heard a most interesting speaker Tuesday afternoon in the person of Mrs. Wallace M. Leonard, secretary of the Seaman's Club, once known as the famous Sailor's Haven, in Boston. She told, in an interesting manner, her experiences in providing entertainment facilities for sailors visiting strange ports for the first time, and indicated the large number of mariners using the facilities of the Sailor's Haven.

She gave a short history of the conditions under which seafaring men used to work, and of the resulting formation of the union. She pointed out that the new laws arming United States merchant ships and allowing them to visit every belligerent port has heightened the dangers and increased the pay of the men who run the ships, and has resulted in their urgent need for a friendly reception and entertainment when they reach port.

Not only is the club doing wonderful work for the men of different nationalities who visit it, but has become an easy way of cementing our friendly foreign relations.

Mrs. Dunwoody President Of Helping Hand Society

The annual election of officers was held by the Helping Hand Society of the Free church at their regular meeting Tuesday evening. Mrs. Joshua Paine presided over the meeting, and Mrs. Edmund Dunwoody was elected president.

The society members plan to hold a food sale Friday afternoon, December 12, the place for which is to be announced later. A New Year's tea is planned for the first Tuesday of January.

Girls' Friendly Society

Members of the Girls' Friendly Society of Christ church attended a supper given at Grace church, Lawrence, last Monday evening. The featured speaker was Miss Greenwood, field secretary of the national organization of the society, who addressed the members on the subject, "The Youth Movement in the Church."

Making The Rounds Here In Andover

Here are three scenes from the highlights in Andover's dramatic, fraternal, and educational worlds last week. All pictures are by the Look Photo Service, which, if not exactly up to the standards of the Wirephotos we see so much of, at least it proves that Donald gets around to snap some mighty interesting scenes.

In the top photo, you see a dramatic moment in the play "Chintz Cottage," put on by the Punchard Junior class last Friday. Is this a dagger which I see before me? No, but an equally potent weapon for investigating spook-ridden gardens. That's a cockney maid named Fanny on the other end of the gun, played by Janice Driscoll; rallying to her support are Minty (Jacqueline Verrette) on the left and Aunt Agatha Tillingtop (Mina Manthorne) on the right.

The center photo would do very well as an illustration for the well-known adage about too many cooks, except that we are reliably informed that the broth turned out very well when the men took their turn in the kitchen at last week's Christ Church harvest supper. Left to right, Walter Rankin, Charles Hill, William Hughes, and George Musk. Don't miss the Vandykes—ooh, la la!

The lower picture—notice all the other people there, too!—was taken last year at one of the Studio Art classes in the Evening Study Group program. A similar course is being offered this year, called Rapid Figure sketching, by Miss Mary M. Hatch of Abbot Academy. Monday is the deadline for registration at the special prices.

"You Can't Take It With You," By Adventurers
Tuesday, Promises To Furnish A New High in Hilarity

SEE FRONT COVER

Old Martin Vanderhof was a man of principle. He didn't believe in paying an income tax, so, when the government man called at his home with a request that he pay up or get cooped up, he glibly announced himself as "Martin Vanderhof, Jr." told the tax collector that his old man had passed away several years back, and asked him to remove his unwelcome presence from the domicile.

That's principle, and that, in essence, is Martin Vanderhof, an inscribable old gentleman, who, retiring from business some thirty years ago so that he might have time enough to live and enjoy himself, has since devoted himself to throwing darts, formulating a happy-go-lucky philosophy and attending Commencement exercises at Columbia University.

He is the dean of a slightly insane household. Boris Kolenkhov, one of the maddest Russians, is an outspoken individual who is teaching Essie Vanderhof ballet dancing, a study in which she shows less and less promise as the years go by. Matron of the Vanderhof manse is Penny Sycamore, who spends her time in writing a novel, mainly, she admits, because someone left a typewriter in the house a few years back. There are also a couple of colored servants named Donald and Rheba, who preserve some semblance of rationality, not that it gets them anywhere. Gay Wellington, an actress who wandered in because someone inadvertently left a window open, is as fond of her likker as of her art, and for both, her enthusiasm knows no bounds.

That all? Well, not exactly. There's Paul Sycamore, Penny's husband, who spends his time experimenting towards bigger and better firecrackers with the aid of Mr. DePinna—nobody knows his first name, though he has lived with the Sycamores ever since he wandered in one day about ten years ago. And there is a deep love interest furnished by Alice Sycamore and Tony Kirby, son of the highly respectable and socially prominent Kirbys. The whole plot, if you want to call it that, revolves around the opposite characters of the Kirbys and the Sycamores, which make it seem evident that the two families cannot be united by the marriage of their scions.

Some Andover people may recognize that as a synopsis of the plot—with the reservations already mentioned—and the characters of the Kaufman and Hart comedy called

"You Can't Take It With You." Most of them will want to see the production of it put on next Tuesday evening at the Memorial Auditorium by the Adventurers.

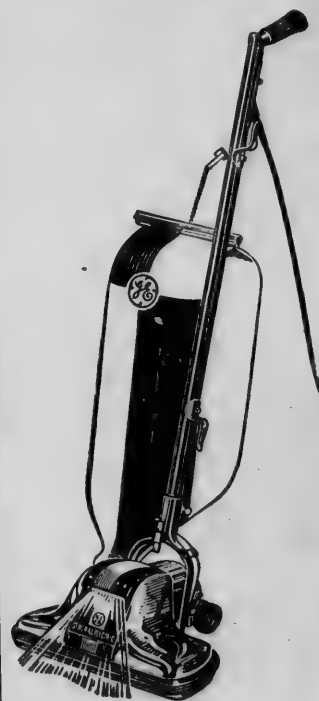

The characters, in order of their appearance, are: Penelope Sycamore, Doris Anderson; Essie, Betty Campbell Saunders; Rheba, Everdike Thiras; Paul Sycamore, Alfred Compton; Mr. De Pinna, James Bletcher; Ed, Everett Gorrie; Donald, Stephen Whitney; Martin Vanderhof, Dan McDonnell; Alice, Thisbe Grieco; Henderson, Dermott McDonnell; Tony Kirby, Richard Cooper; Boris Kolenkhov, Leo Gillespie; Gay Wellington, Hazel Waterhouse; Mr. Kirby, Arthur Flynn; Mrs. Kirby, Alicia Waterson; Three Men, Louis Cox, Bernard Boyle, A. Montague Fitzpatrick; Olga, Eleanor Bishop.

Punchard Notes

By Sally O'Riordan

The basketball season has come around once more and both the boys and girls have started practice. The girls will have as their coach Miss Frances Collins, girls' physical education director at Punchard.

The boys are to be coached this year by Mr. Anton Kishon, who is also football coach. They will play teams of other schools throughout the season.

The various committees for the Junior play last Thursday evening were: Furniture, Miss Marjorie Smith of the faculty, Earl Maddox, Gordon Cannon, Miss Patricia Arnold, Paul Hood, Edward Morrissey, William Holland, and Donald MacLellan.

Properties: Miss Jean Gilfoy, Miss Marguerite Surette, Miss Esther Dimlich, Miss Constance Boddy and Miss Rita Lynch.

Costumes: Miss Gwen Armitage of the faculty, Miss Mildred Videto, Miss Katherine O'Riordan, Miss Barbara Ferrier, Miss June Bell, and Frederick Nowell.

Advertising: Miss Agnes Dugan of the faculty, Miss Claire Lefebvre, Miss Merle Drouin, Donald Look, Richard Lynch, and Edward Palenski.

Junior High Notes

By Miriam Dearborn

Division 16, grade 9, recently presented a program on the Junior High School Bank. Each student wrote an original essay and read it before the student body. The assembly was concluded with a 15-minute film on "Speed Typewriting," shown through the courtesy of the Royal Typewriting Company.

Those taking part were: Ralph Webb, master of ceremonies; Phyllis Anderson, Marguerite Botsch, Nellie Buntin, Annie Colombostian, Rowena Coon, Pauline Erler, Edith Gilman, Robert Hamilton, Esther Hibbert, Patricia Holt, Paul Kirwin, Mabel Lawrence, David MacCord, Hazel Murphy, Dorothy Ness, Frances Pattulo, Shirley Stevens, Patrick Bissonette, Carlene Reed, Eunice MacDonald.

This week the Andover Junior High School has been called upon to serve the Andover chapter of the American Red Cross by aiding in the selling of the Christmas seal stamps. The pupils chosen will be at the Andover Post Office from December 1 to 20, from 2 to 6, on two hour shifts. Everyone is entering into this with the enthusiasm always shown when helping the Red Cross. The group is under the supervision of Mrs. Lyman Cheever, and half of the money received will go to the Essex County Tuberculosis Fund, while the other half goes to the Red Cross in Andover.

Here is the list of pupils and their time:

December 1, Miriam Dearborn, from 2 to 4, and Richard Kimball, from 4 to 6; December 2, Fred Anderson and Dorothy Eccles; December 3, Joan Gale and Tom Carter; December 4, Loring Batchelder and Ruth Gregory; December 5, Barbara Knowles and George Collins; December 6, Robert Hamilton and David Stafford; December 8, Barbara Hill and Duncan Cairnie; December 9, Betty Johnson and Robert Creamer; December 10, David Graham and Jane Lindsay; December 11, Randlett Emmons and Barbara Dean; December 12, Charles Hayward and Jean Mulvey; December 13, Grant MacMackin and Virginia Hardy; December 15, Paul Marier and Louise Doyle; December 16, John Little and Margaret Howe; December 17, David MacCord and Barbara Barnard; December 18, William Valentine and Sally McDuffie; December 19, Philip Markey and Edith Ambye; December 20, Ellen Pitman and Ted White.

Substitutes will be Scott Paradise and Helen Dowd.

The tea Tuesday was a great success with about 100 people attending. The hostesses, directed by Mrs. Douglas Pitman, were: Mrs. Needham Brown, Mrs. James P. Christie, Mrs. Harry Hayward, Mrs. Frederick Flather, Mrs. C. H. Bendroth, Mrs. George M. Collins, Mrs. W. A. Fleming, Mrs. Clarence Waugh, Mrs. George Glennie and Mrs. Scott Paradise.

Girls who assisted in serving were: Jacquelyn Barry, Cynthia Black, Mabel Broughton, Claire Darby, Lillian Dimlich, Louise Doyle, Lorraine Hardisty, Virginia Hardy, Barbara Lewis, Frances Little, Barbara Monroe, Claudia Nicoll, Sally North, Winifred Runtton, Mavis Twomey, Jane Weldon, Betty Seward, Marjorie Miller, Ruth Glennie.

50 YEARS AGO. Boys' reefers were selling from four to ten dollars...The gripe was playing a return engagement...A. W. Farnsworth was sole agent for "Hale and Williams Wonder Ointment for the cure of all skin diseases of man or beast"...The Baptist church trustees voted to have electricity installed there...W. H. Higgins, the tally-ho man, had a pair of fine dray horses up for sale...Thomas Murphy, the well-known baker, had a handsome new cart built by William Poor...The Free Church Sunday school appointed a committee to plan its New Year's entertainment...Lady members of the Andover Grange were to hold a "pound auction." We don't get it...E. C. Towle lost his moustache when a few stray grains of blasting powder blazed up in his face...Miss Lane was to give lessons in painting at L. H. Eames' home on Elm street...Walter S. Ufford, military instructor at Punchard, accepted a call to the ministry. Evidently a jack-of-all trades...Brooks F. Holt came back from a New Hampshire hunting trip with a brace of rabbits, which were promptly put on display in A. W. Farnsworth's showcase...J. J. Sweeney was elected regent of Indian Ridge council, Royal Arcanum...Corporal Birnie of the Punchard Cadets was promoted to sergeant...Supt. Lovejoy filled in the gutters on Main street, and people began to ride with more equanimity...First skating of the season was enjoyed at local ponds...A new laundry took over the space formerly used by the Popular Cash Market...A handsome, stylish horse" was the remark when Proprietor Spinney of the Elm House rode by behind his gray colt. He wasn't such a bad looker himself...Intoxicated persons were henceforth to be barred from the electric cars.
